ANOTHER CHANGE IN THE SUNDAY LAW

Judiciary Committee Submitted to the House a Bill to Permit the Sale on Sunday of Milk, Bakery Products, Ice, Ice Cream, Confectionery, Non-Alcoholic Beverages, Tobacco, Newspapers and Periodicals-Busy Day in Both Branches of the General Assembly.

(Special to The Eulletin.)

Hartford. March 22.—Speaker Healey conducted the business with a rush Thursday, and the house had been in seasion just an hour when the overburdened calendar was reached and several matters disposed of which were of general and local interest. It was the first session of the week that any material raid was made in the calendar, which meant real constructive legislation.

Another radical change in the existing Siunday laws of Connecticut was recommended to the General Assembly today when the judiciary committee reported to the house a bill to permit the sale on Sunday of milk, bakery products, ice, ice cream, confectionery, non-alcoholic beverages, tobacco and tobacconists supplies newspapers and periodicals.

Mr. Peasley of the committee of the judiciary made unfavorable report of the bill concerning the qualification of women voters, giving them power to vote on the liquor question. Speaker Healey said the proper committee to Healey said the proper committee to consider that measure was the woman suffrage committee. He said that when he entered on his duty he took cath to nerform it faithfully and to enforce the rules of the house. He said the only proper committee to consider this matter was that of woman suffrage. The day after reference of the bill was referred to the judiciary committee he went to the senate and the house chairmen and told them he had made a mistake and asked that the bill be referred to the proper committee. The speaker said the committee did not comply with his request and that now he would make such reference.

Mr. Foord of Stamford took appeal from the action of the speaker on the ground that the speaker had no right to make the change-in reference. Mr. Shaw of Redding seconded the appeal. Mr. Foord said he expected this action and was presented. Mr. Foord said he expected this action and was prepared for a complete argument to show that the power of change of reference was with the speaker and not with the house. He quoted what he classed as undisputed authority and spoke at considerable length. He urged the members to hold the control of the house in the matter of reference.

Mr. Shaw of Redding said there is a companion bill which provides for
